The Center for Hellenic Studies (CHS) offers two fellowships to postdoctoral researchers based in Greece and Cyprus. The program aims to support researchers whose work requires continued access to material on site (e.g. archives, artifacts, archaeological sites), and to encourage research of the highest quality on topics related to ancient Greek civilization. The fellowships are offered by the CHS in Washington, DC, and supported administratively and logistically by the CHS in Greece.

Prerequisites for fellowships are a PhD degree (or its equivalent). Applicants must have defended their degree before July 1, 2019.

Applicants must be citizens or permanent residents of Greece or Cyprus.

As part of the application process, applicants must submit a project proposal, curriculum vitae, a sample of published work, the contact information for three references, and proof of citizenship or permanent residency in Greece or in Cyprus.

Applicants with questions should contact the Fellowships Program Manager by e-mail.
